

Dan Poynter presents

SPEAKAHOLISM

Just say NO to Microphones

Dan Poynter presents a humorous "stand-up" production that rings true to keynoters, breakout speakers and others in the speaking industry.

He confesses his addiction to professional speaking (many of us speak because we have to not because we want to.) He tells of his 12-step experience. (Every step turned into a signature story and he wound up with another darn speech.) He pleads with his audience to break the cycle of keynote abuse.

He continues on to reveal some of the innermost secrets of the professional speaking industry.

Dan singles out audience members for some of his comments; he works co-dependents (those who do not speak but are being driven crazy by a speaker) and recovering speakers (those who are tempted but have stayed away from microphones for a while) into the presentation. Some of his commentary could even be true.

Audiences love this program as they identify with the addiction to professional speaking that Dan describes. Laughter brings tears to their eyes.

Dan Poynter is an author of more than 120 books, has been a publisher since 1969 and is a Certified Speaking Professional (CSP). His seminars have been featured on CNN, his books have been pictured in The Wall Street Journal and his story has been told in US News & World Report. He has shared his message with every International Speaking Federation Association and nearly every speaking chapter in the U.S., Canada, U.K., Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

This program is best presented as a keynote or following a meal.

P-50, SpeakAholism. Keynote, 30 minutes.
